LARGE POTATOES GROWN LOCALLY

Sixth Street Man Shows Spuds From Garden Weighing Each Over a Pound

Some of the largest potatoes ever grown in this vicinity are being produced by John Molinatto a Belgian of 601 Sixth street who has a half-acres plot whehe he does gardening. Molinatto is showing four average potatoes from his garden and they are immense. The largest one of the four from one hill weighs one pound and 13 ounces.

Mr. Molinatto is an expert. He has produced his potatoes and other wegetable crops through a scientific formula. He is more familiar with United States and state handbooks of information to growers than the men who write them, but is of the opinion from his own experiences that the agricultural department publications do not cover the subject well. As a result he is preparing a book himself. That he knows of what he is talking there is no doubt. Not only does he raise large potatoes in his half-acre of land but he raises other vegetables that are equally as splendid in size and quality.

Monongahela Railroad Preparing Schedules and Tariffs

TO OPEN NEW ROUTE

Passenger traffic will be started November 1 on the Monongahela railroad from Brownsville to the Pennsylvania-West Virginia state line, according to information which has leaked out from Brownsville, where the head offices of the road are located. Tariffs and schedules are now being prepared.

The Monongahela railroad has been completed for eight or nine months, and there has been some freight traffic carried on for some time along the greater part of the route. The line terminates technically at Martin, but there is a connection with the Buckhannon and Northern now being completed that will eventually provide a through line to Fairmont, W. Va.

G. B. Obey of Brownsville is the general superintendent of the Monongahela Railroad and it is under his direction that the schedules and tariffs are being prepared. It is believed that at first no more than three trains a day each way will be run for passenger service.

Agents of contractors having charge of work on the Buckhannon and Northern in Fairmont, W. Va have been in Wheeling several days in search of laborers in Belmont county, where a miners' strike is in progress. It is said contractors are working day and night shifts to get excavation work completed before the ground freezes. Much of the equipment for the new road has been received. A river bridge is bing erected a short distance north of Fairmont so as to permit entrance into Fairmont on the east side of the river.

The opening of the Buckhannon and Northern will mean the beginning of coal development in the West Virginia section. Rich coal lands are owned. Eventually it is believed the Monongahela and Buckhannon and Northern routes will form a connecting link to southern points like New Orleans, other gulf points and seacoast points.

SEEING THE WORLD.

Every now and so often some small boy gets the idea that the time has arrived for him to run away from home and see the world It may be the visit of a circus or a show troupe to town that starts that notion surging around in his small cranium. It may be some needed home reproof that has filled his soul with gall and made him wish for release from parental authority. But whatever the cause the majority of boys at some time or other in their young lives, experience the desire to run away from home.

Some of them escape the consequences of such rash action through their own fear of venturing into the unknown on their own responsibility. Others pause to consider—even a boy sometimes does that—and then their growing better judgment tells them of the folly of their proposed course, says the Washington Reporter. But some there are who yield to the call of the wild and who do run away from home.

And what do they accomplish by their running? The first and one of the most serious things they do by running away is to give their fathers and mothers and all their real friends sleepless nights and harried days. The love which they have failed to recognize or have spurned reaches out to them in the unknown in vain and it may be that love sinks down in death before they ever have opportunity to know its full, rich meaning.

In addition to that these runaway boys in about eleven cases of every ten experience hardships such as they had never dreamed in their wildest fancies; they see the rough and seamy side of life. the side which has no beauty but is all ugliness and pain and suffering and bestial greed. They see things and experience things which they never can forget and those scars upon their souls will always be with them to haunt them and to make them unhappy. If by good chance they do not meet with physical mishap or death it is nearly certain that before they have traveled far they will run afoul of the police of some sort or other and gain bitter knowledge learned only from the captive's side of the grating.

And then, if all goes even moderately well, the runaway boy returns home some day or is brought home shamefaced and more or less disgraced in the eyes of his friends. He is not the young hero he pictured himself. Even the other boys of his acquaintance show that they are not particularly proud of his exploits. And while he appreciates his home more than he ever did before yet the atmosphere of that home is changed for him and it will never be the same. There will be lacking in it certain trust and sincerity which he had never thought of before but whose absence he now bitterly appreciates.

The boys who do not run away because they are afraid to sleep out at night or because they have too much sense to do anything so foolish are the fortunate boys and the happy boys. The lure of the circus soon will pass. The momentary temper and rage will ere long be forgotten. And the boy who has real brains and sense will realize more and more each day that the one best place for him in all the world is his own home, no matter how humble it may be or what its limitations or disadvantages may be.

LECTURING THE HOUSEWIFE

In these days of high-cost-of-living the housewife is forced to read lectures not of the curtain variety. Recently she was conceded a decisive victory over the dealer who tried to play the game of gouge by referring his exorbitant price increases to the war, and another success was achieved by substituting for commodities of excessive cost others of equal nutriment that were cheaper but not quite as select. Now there is a noticeable disposition to admonish her, says the Pittsburg Post.

A Dallas editor exudes the idea that the high cost is due in some measure to "there being too much going into the ragbag and too little coming out." There may be some sagacity in what seems to be a homespun manner of denouncing waste, but it is not probable that any doctrine of domestic economy, which involves the ragbag, will engage the housewife's attention.

Secretary Redfield has adverted to the familiar view that the cost of delivering articles from stores creates a large item of the price. Manifestly it does, but how will it be remedied? To cater to those who, despite high prices, will demand this delivery an equipment will have to be maintained. Then it would be a loss self-invited were the equipment in excess of its need. It is then that the resident who lives near enough to carry small packages concludes that he might as well enjoy the comfort of having them delivered.

To adjust the amount of delivery equipment to the custom that deserves such treatment, by allowing a discount to those who carry home their own purchases would never work. In short, modern living has approved the delivery system and knows it pays for it. It cannot be unscrambled, unless by substitution of some scale of charges, like a taxicab exacts. Would that be popular?

PICKED UP IN PASSING

A fastidious gentleman was enjoying a cigar with a friend one afternoon.

The guest, having reached the end of his Havana, hurled the stump on the wellkept lawn.

"What made you throw your cigar there?" said the old gentleman, angrily. "See how unsightly it is on the lovely grass."

"That surely won't do any harm," said the other. "for nobody would notice a little thing like that."

"My dear fellow," solemnly replied the old grumbled. "It's just little things like these that constitute tidiness and tidiness is half the comfort of life."

His friend said no more for a time and in a few moments he arose hurriedly, disappeared and was absent for a full twenty minutes.

"Where on earth have you been?" asked his host when he returned at last.

"Oh, I've only been across the meadow to spit in the river."

Father was sitting in the den one evening puffing on his meerschaum and reading the sporting extra when mother entered the room with a smile on her face.

"When I passed the parlor door just now, John," said the good woman, "I peeped in and what do you think I saw?"

"That's an easy one," returned the old man, "two spooners, a box of candy and toy dog."

"No," returned mother. "It was Gladys sitting on the piano stool, with her young man kneeling before her holding fast to both of her hands."

"Great wisdom on the part of John Henry!" was the prompt comment of father. "He was trying to keep her from playing the piano."

Football Some Game.

Once more the quarterback cries out:
"8-40-53;"
There is a scrimmage, then a shout
The fullback's wrenched his knee.

This time the gallant leader yells:
"3-18-34;"
A tackle rough our center falls
And breaks three ribs or more.

Again they hear the captain cry:
"10-20-72;;"
That looks just like our halfback's eye
Upon their captain's shoes.

WAR BULLETINS

Paris, Oct. 22.—Desperate fighting continues in west Flanders and northern France between Germany's armies, reinforced by virtually all her forces in the occupied portions of Belgium and the French and British troops, aided by British warships. The coast to the Yser river still divides the contending forces. The Germans claim that they are advancing towards Yyres, and that the allies are retiring from a number of important positions. This statement is contradicted by the French. They state that things are deadlocked.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The German embassy announced receipt of a dispatch which says that heavy fighting still continues on the Yser canal. The allies artillery is supported from the sea. The German artillery disabled one British destroyer. The Germans have taken the offensive west of Lille and repulsed the enemy. Two thousand English have been made prisoners and several machine guns captured. On the Russian side there is no decision yet.

Petragrad, Oct. 23—A dispatch from Russian headquarters says that the rapid retreat of the Germans from Warsaw continues. The bombardment by the enemy's heavy artillery has caused no essential damage to the fortifications of Ivangood or the bridges. In Galicia desperate engagements are still being fought. During the advance in the region between Przemysl and the Vistula the Germans captured more than 30 officers, 2,000 soldiers and many rapid-fire guns.

Manchester, Mass., Oct. 23.—A dispatch to the Austro-Hungarian embassy says that in Galicia the Austrian troops have gained in stubborn attacks on the fortified hostile positions, and have carried several important heights. Counter attacks by the Russians have all been unsuccessful. On the southern wing the fighting is cheifly an artillery duel. The Austrians have advanced to the Great Secret river in the province of Bukovina.

BENTLEYVILLE

Night School a Success.

The night school recently established here by Professor Elmer E. McGill, principal of the Bentleyville grade schools has proven a decided success at the very beginning. When the school was talked of the popular opinion was that the town was not sufficiently large to support a night school. During the first week there were 18 members enrolled. Almost all the students are foreigners desiring to get a firmer grasp on the American language. A b right future seems to be in store for the institution.

Entertainment.

The Mendelssohn quartet afforded a successful entertainment to a goodly audience in Beallsville Thursday evening. Miss Myrtle Burns delivered several excellent readings. People from the surrounding countryside were present, some attending from the Bentleyville section.

To Attend Wireless Exposition.

Saturday Randolph Fonner, Samuel Kleon, Thomas Walker, Moore Newlon, Samuel M. House and several others of the Bentleyville high school will attend the wireless convention held in Thaw hall, Pittsburg under the auspices of the University of Pittsburg. They will also take in the auto show in East End.

Bridge to be Completed Soon.

The Forest contractors of Washington are rapidly pushing the work on the bridge on Washington street over Pigeon creek. The firm concrete piers and stunch girders have already been placed in position. Only a small amount of work remains to be done. In accordance to the town's wish the structure will be completed before the snows of winter fall.

LITTLE DAUGHTER VERY DELICATE

Mother Tells How Vinol Made Her Delicate Child One of the Healthiest.

Fayetteville, N. C.—"My little daughter was in delicate and very poor health and had so little strength it caused us a great deal of uneasiness. I noticed an advertisement of Vinol and decided to try it. The results were simply marvelous as her appetite improved at once, she gained so much in weight and looks that my friends all commented on the change. She is now one of the healthiest children in town and does not need medicine of any kind. All mothers who have delicate children should try Vinol." —Mrs. GORDON JESSUP, Fayetteville, N. C.

Vinol is a wonderful appetizer and you can see delicate, ailing children improve day by day under its use, for it is the tissue building and medicinal elements of cod's livers, aided by the blood making, strength creating properties of tonic iron which makes Vinol so superior to other tonics to build up health and strength for delicate children, feeble old people and weak, run-down, nervous debilitated men and women.

We wish every mother who has a delicate child would try Vinol on our agreement to return their money if it fails to give satisfaction.
